

"I didn't want my court appearance to feel like a big deal. I wanted to feel like people were there to help me – that they understood that these things happen. I didn't want people to look at me differently."